

License Reconciliation

Do you need better control over your software assets? Reconcile your purchase history detail to determine what you're entitled to use.

MAXIMIZE YOUR SOFTWARE INVESTMENTS

Identifying the gaps in your software licensing can help your company maintain compliancy with software requirements and federal regulations and save you money. A facts-based understanding of your software assets and how they're being utilized is fundamental to making the right decisions for your business. Insight has the proven experience to help you navigate this licensing maze.

A PROVEN METHODOLOGY—AND PROVEN RESULTS

Insight's team of license management experts helps you gain control over your software assets by analyzing and reconciling your purchase history detail to determine what you are entitled to use. Your license entitlements are compared to software deployed on your desktop computers and file servers, providing you with your overall software compliance risk. We will also help you determine what software licenses you have over- and under-purchased. In addition, our experts will provide you with suggestions to mitigate your risk. Recommendations vary by client but may include streamlining purchasing and software deployment processes, purchasing additional software licenses or reallocating licenses that you already own. Our license reconciliation process creates a basis for continued license management, and is specifically tailored for your organization.

Benefits:

- Redistribution of unused software licenses
- Basis for license agreement negotiations
- Foundation for license management processes
- Potential to create standard software environment
- Detailed overview serves as basis for migration planning
- Sarbanes-Oxley compliance

Methodology

We use your purchase history detail reports and software deployment information from your internal inventory tools. In the event that you need inventory tools, our Technology Assessment Services (TAS) group evaluates and suggests recommendations of SAM discovery, inventory-metering and usage-monitoring tools that will best suit your unique technology environment.

Our Software Asset Management team takes data from your inventory reporting and applies proprietary tools and processes to create customized License Compliance Reports. We'll also suggest ways to minimize your license compliance risk and improve software purchasing and deployment processes. This information will help you devise purchasing and deployment strategies to optimize all your software investments.
